Hindenburg Believed to Be Getting Spring Offensive Under Way

COPENHAGEN, May 3. ERMAN troop movements of the utmost significance, possibly harbingers of Hindenburg spring offensive, are believed to have been taking place. Since Friday no Berlin papers have reached Copenhagen, and no other German papers with the single exception of a belated Hamburger Fremdenblatt this morning. Prac tically no mail is coming out of Germany, practically no private telegrams, and few press messages. Seldom has the German border been more tightly sealed and behind these extraordinary precautions against leaks one is justified in seeing the hand of Ludendorff manipulating the figures on the strategic chess board. In the West, fine dry weather is a vital factor in the closely guard-ed Hindenburg-Ludendorff plan, owing to its basis of technical and tactical novelties, and the fact that spring has apparently come to stay tends to confirm the evidence of the closed German border that there is something doing.

JOFFRE SMILES HIS WAY INTO CHICAGO HEARTS

Entwines Tri-Color and Stars and Stripes When Called Before Mass Meeting.

VIVIANI IS ACCLAIMED

Toasts President at Dinner to French Mission-Military Parade Today.

CHICAGO, May 5.-Joseph Jacques Joffre, Marshal of France, has smiled his way into the heart of Chicago and the Middle West. Not understanding set the French mission on its every turn today with a kindly, courageou smile—a smile that seemed to explain the title "Papa Joffre." And it was with this smile illuminating his face that he stood before the mass meeting last night, after it had clampred for a expression from him, and entwined two small flags, the Tri-color of France and the Star-Spangled Banner of the United States.

Rene Viviani, French Minister o Justice and head of the mission, was acclaimed no less enthusiastically. His eloquence brought to Chicagoans a the war and their responsibilities in it His appeal to his "American brothers" to "come under your glorious banner to fight for the democracy o the world, to show our men that when the rights of a single nation are vio lated, the rights of all nations are trampled under foot,"—the official text which was given out at the home of R. T. Crane Jr., where members of the mission spent the night-was said to have been one of the most dramatic ever made in Chicago.

Toust to the President.

In the address, made at a dinner to the commissioners, M. Viviani toasted the President of the United States. He ted out that the common ideals ocracles together far more closely than alliances of blood bind royal families. He said Lafayette brought-back from America many of to Frenchmen and Americans.

'If we had our doubts as to the jus tice of our cause," he added, "we should not have doubted any longer when, gazing across the vast expanse turning to our side and, so far asg they could, by their sympathy, by the benefits they showered on the heads of our dying, our orphans, prove to us the arder of a sympathy which in those tragic hours raised and lifted us above.

"And if from the first you gave us in mable benefit of your moral support it is because you are a great democracy it is because we are a great democracy free men who were thus agreed to raise yet higher the flag of democracy before the rampart of an autocracy which is tottering to its fall. Already with fire and sword, by the valor of our children, the strength of our arms, we have passed beyond the wall and above it sent the radiance of all the ideas of liberty.

President's Message.
"In the message of Mr. Wilson, incom arable in its grandeur and nobility and which the Government of France, and which the determinent of the republic has placarded in every village in France and had read and interpreted to all the children in the schools, stepped to the front of the rostrum, or many and many your illustrious President made manifest the ideas of America. He expressed them too magnificently for me to express them in turn. But when I speak spoke in French, was finally entwining and then the other, finally entwining of democratic ideas, when I speak of violated rights to be avenged, of the sufferings endured by those who have fought for liberty and can only be repaid victory, I cannot better symbolize my thoughts, to give them concrete form, than to raise my glass in honor of the illustrious President of the United flag is to the people of France-s

While M. Viviani spoke, many Chicasoans saw a good omen in the discov ery of a cloud flying in the zenith which ned the American flag. Teachers Lukewarm Patriots?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

There are a number of public school teachers in St. Louis who think it unnecessary to display the American flag in the schools and a waste of time to teach the children patriotism. Those who teach the children at a time when first sentiments are forming should be true to our country. Would it be an insult to our good loyal teachers to make them all take the oath of allegiance? This has been done in New York. Cannot we do the same

A HEMMORRHAGE OF INVECTIVE.

The News-Democrat, a newspaper published in the English language at Belleville, Ill., says the Post-Dispatch is a snake in the grass, with a fearful forked tongue and a horrible hiss, which is fighting free speech and a free press in America. REDEMPTION OF MARTYRED RHEIMS.

A particular interest attends the latest French offensive against formidable heights in the valley of the Vesle from the fact that if its success continues it will soon make impossible further bombardments of Rheims.

Neutrals have wondered why a special effort to force the Germans back at this point was not made long ago, but detailed descriptions o the difficulty of subduing the elevations occupled by the Germans make the reason plain. Rheims has had an experience different from that of any of the other distressed cities of Northern France. The Germans were compelled to evacuate it after the Battle of the Marne, but fried, flanked by the golden orbs of two fresh were enabled to establish their lines near enough to it to shatter it with long-range guns. JUST A MINUTE

ACT II.—"SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE."

Written for the POST-DISPATCH by Clark McAdams

MR. ANTWINE ON THE BATTLE OF ARRAS. 66 D RESUMABLY, the battle of Arras is going to the British," Mr. Antwine said. "However, it is not going so fast but one must follow its course with all the patience which Mr. Wilson has taught us. Doubtless, there is great significance in the news that the pickle works at Gavrelle have been occupied by Canadian troops, but one must have some capacity for the infinite minutae of the conflict to appreciate it. Modern battles are unlike any battles that have ever been fought, and it is not easy to think of them in the terms of that patient progress the British are making. In a country of magnificent distances, such as this is, and one in which history is full of grand military gallops like the battle of Bull's Run, it is not to be expected that we can readily attach the importance it deserves to a fight which advances from the waterworks to the car barn, or which marks as its next objectives the roundhouse and the soap factory. We do not know Bullecourt, for instance, well enough to understand just what that means, nor are we familiar enough with Oppy to appreciate whether it is to the British advantage to hold the windmill or the graveyard. We can only assume in a general way that it is a good idea to get the Germans in the graveyard.

"We like the expression 'bite.' To read that the British have taken another bite into the Hindenburg line is always reassuring. We wish that everything reported of the British advance might as readily convey to the imagination that progress which is now our own. That is one of the reasons why so many of us would like to see Col. Roosevelt and his division on the allied front. Not only would the fighting gain something in fury, but the reports of it would be bound to take on some of that picturesqueness which is to us understandable. The Colonel, as we well know, would 'hit' the Hindenburg line where now we have merely the British 'advance.' We would not simply push the foe back, but 'beat him to a frazzie.' We would not just attack him, as the laconic Briton does, but 'wade into him,' 'bust him' and 'knock hell out of him.'

"The British bulletin of today says: 'We made further progress during the night northwest of St. Quentin and northeast of Hargicourt, where we captured the Malakoff farm.' Probably something stirring hides itself beneath the placid surface of that unemotional verbiage, but we can only guess that was so. There is nothing in the bulletin itself indicating anything of the kind, nor must we expect anything better until we get our own men over there and catch in our own bulletins of what happened the impet-uous spirit of our precipitous kind. Smagine one of our baseball games being reported in the manner of the British advance. Mr. Cobb occupied second. Mr. Sisler batted and made progress as far as third base. Nothing about Mr. Cobb knocking four men down getting into second, and not a word about Mr. Sisler having cuffed the ball against the backfield fence. Picture us writing like that! Not an emotion. Not a whoop anywhere. Only the fact, unadorned.

"Still, it is this same quality in the Briton, perhaps, that is winning the battle of Arras. * Only it is a little bit hard on us all. * * * would like to know."

Lurking Danger

No home can be sealed against the entrance of disease germs. If there is disease in the neighborhood the germs will be in the air and will be carried into the home just as dust is.

In the cracks and seams of woodwork the germs are lodged until sweeping or dusting whirls them into the air to be breathed into nostrils and throats, the entrances for contagious disease.

Even if the sweeper escapes disease, there is a strong likelihood that some other person will be infected through breathing the germ-laden air. Brooms and dust rags are also carriers of disease germs.

Disease germs can be killed in the home before sweeping or the romping of children stirs them into the air. Soap-and-water does not kill all germs, but Lysol does.

A 25c bottle of Lysol makes two gallons of reliable disinfectant; a 50c bottle makes five gallons. The sprinkling of floors and woodwork with this, before sweeping, insures the destruction of all germs on the

The information seemed so good that they could not believe it was true till they had verified the young gunner's statements; and everything he told them proved to be correct enough. Department at the Ballplatz. "If you send me to Zurich and pay me well," he said, "I can put you to mmunication with people in Italy who will be even more useful than I am." After some parley they let him go to Zurich to work under the Austrian Consul-General in that city. This once Swiss town has become about as German as Berlin, being the center of the German-Swiss and of thousands who took out papers of Swiss citizenship when war broke out. It is also the clearing house of the central Powers' elaborate spying system and there are more spies, plots and counter plots theer than in any other European city, which Glusappe was therefore "attached" to the Austrian consulate in Zurich. His work consisted of freating with new spies who were willing to work in Italy for the benefit of Germany and Austrian. At first his employers had him watched most carefully. Everytime he went to a cafe, a barber's shop, to church or to walk, his steps were dogged. But he behaved so well that after a few weeks' vigilance was relaxed.

Presumably the Italian Minister had heard about the woman and expected her visit. He procured two expert critinals from Rome, men who had been convicted for thefts in hotels and other fashionable places and whose reputations—from a professional viewpoint—were beyond reproach.

They, too, were astounded, for they soon saw that the robbery had been committed in a way hitherto unknown in honest Switzerland, with tools and solvents used only by modern expert thieves. The outer doors of the office had been opened with false keys, though the Austrian Consul fondly them too intricate to copy.

Little did the Austrians think that the shots fired at his deserting figure were blank shots, or that the information he gave and they verified was given with the full knowledge and approval of his commanding officers.

BROWNS' GOAT IS GONE

Same Is Believed to Have Been in Chicago's Possession Ever Since Last Season.

By W. J. O'Connor.

"If the weather permits," a bromide as popular with the baseball writers just now as "Unaccustomed as I am' is to the self-appointed orators at enlistment rallies—the Browns will war against the White Sox at Grand-Dodler terrain, this afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock.

Chicago is here for six games in five days, the double-dose probably being reserved for Sunday, although no official announcement has yet been made. So far this season the Browns have succeeded in winning two games have succeeded in winning two games out of seven from the Sox without having yet made satisfactory explanation. Last year the Browns won seven and lost 15 of their Chicago encounters and, for that reason, finished in second division.

Today Fielder Jones intends to send Allan Sothoron against the common enemy, because Sothoron succeeded in winning one of those two games. Plank pinched off the other. The Sox probably will depend on Cicotte who pitched a no-hit game the last time he antagonized our boys on the local loam. no official announcement has yet been

The White Sox have not fared so well in the past ten days. Since April 24, when Jim Scott defeated Cleve-land, 1-0, the Sox have lost five out 24, when Jim Scott defeated Cleveland, 1—0, the Sox have lost five out of seven games, releasing first place to the Red Sox, who are humming along at a .700 pace or better.

The reason for this Chicago siump has been the failure of Gandil, Jackson, Felsch and Risberg to do their share of the hitting. Eddie Collins, too, has been hitting in spots, with no degree of consistency or timelines.

For that reason is it opportune and important that the Browns hop out and smash the Chicago spell. If the White Sox are successful again this season in winning two-thirds of their games from the Browns, there will be no chance for a pennant to fly at Sportsman's park.

Despite the discouraging conditions, superinduced by the war and the rain, Phil Ball has come forward with another word of encouragement for his Browns. Yesterday he promised them individually and severally a $50 suit of clothes if they nose into first place for 48 hours at any time this season. Ball is prompted by genuine sportsmanship but it will be a good investment if he's obliged to pay.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review today, says:

"Today's movement on the Stock Exchange was such as is apt to terminate an unsettled week. The day's market was hesitant and irregular, with no such liquidation as has occurred on recent days, but with continued pressure on some of the railway shares. How much effect the utterly perplexing news from Petrograd produced on financial sentiment, it was hard to say.

"Testerday's estimates of loss of cash by the New York banks this week, which varied as widely as from $83,000,000 checrease of cash in the vaults of individual banks, offset, however, by $22,700,000 in reserve oredits at the Federal bank. The last-samed change, along with the increase of $10,300,000 in rediscounts reported by that institution, showed that the Federal reserve facilities are now being invoked.

"The loss in cash was very greatly offset by reduction of $33,500,000 in outstanding loans. This was a manifest result was reduction of $31,500,000 in the surplus reserve which now, though still more than twice as high as it was last autumn, is below the surplus of a year ago."

HOLLWEG TO MAKE NEW STATEMENT ON PEACE TERMS

Copenhagen Dispatch Says Chancellor Will . Make "Plainer Declaration."

WITHIN TWO WEEKS

Bitter Discussion in Germany Among Factions Over Annexation Question.

COPENHAGEN, May 5.-A plainer declaration of Germany's peace condions will be made by Chancellor vor Bethmann-Hollweg within a fortnight. Dr. Karl Helfferich, the Vice Chancellor, announced yesterday that an anwould be made within this time by the Chancellor to the interpellations presented by the Conservatives and the Socialists. The Chancellor's decision to define Germany's aims was the result of pressure exerted from all sides.

The silence of the Chancellor concering Germany's peace terms, if, as declared, is based on a desire to avoid disrupting the unity of feeling in the country by discussion of contentious ques ions and not, as some uncharitable German critics assert, on the absence of a definite Government peace policy, has failed of its object. An acrimonious con troversy is now raging in Germany between the big annexationists, the little annexationists and the advocates of na annexations and indemnities whatever. The revival of the activity of the im-perialistic organizations of agriculture and industry, who were responsible for the famous suppressed circular of the six leagues with a sweeping annexationst program in 1915, is marked by the issue of a stiffly worded pronunciamento from a long list of agricultural, industrial and even religious organizations. The Pan-German League and the army and navy leagues are demanding peace with indemnities, increased territories and greater power for Germany. Socialists meetings, on the other and, are making and strengthening ifties and no annexations. The Socialist leaders obviously are endeavoring to sweep the Government and the Imperial Chancellor into a declaration of the German peace alms on similar lines and which could be used at the Stockholm conference.

The moderate elements, who favor taking what can be gotten, are assailing Von Bethmann-Hollweg for weak-kneed snrinking from trouble, and demand in sprinking from trouble, and demand in belief that with the proposed must belief that with the proposed must belief that with the proposed must be Chancellor now make a clear and definite statement of policy as a step to- Mo., was an intimate friend of Mark

Homesick

By Schuyler Terrill.

'M homesick for the West-and for For a moment Dora Trisdala buried her curly head among the fadel cushions of the narrow couch. Mary Myers sitting opposite, gazed upon her wonderfigly.

"I didn't know you felt that way about it," she said finally. "I thought you liked it here."

Dorn sat up her black ever steeming.

Dora sat up, her black eyes gleaming "Like it?" she burst forth. "I hate every minute of every day here in New York."

Mary smiled grimly.
"Why did you come, then?" she asked "Because I didn't know any better."
hint of tears bordered the other girl's eyes. "I-I only wish that I could go back again."

"Why don't you?"
"I can't."
"Why?"

For a long two minutes Dora was silent. She seemed to have forgotten the shabby room with its meager furnishings. Her eyes looked off into the distance, visioning something of which her companion was not a part. "I never told you why I came here did I?" she asked finally.

"No, except that you wanted to go on the stage."

"You know about Jim, don't you?"

Well, I was engaged to marry him once," Pora continued. "He is only a farmer—a big rube, we'd call him here but he was about the only fellow I'd

"Did he have any money?"
"He wasn't any millionaire, but he owned a big farm and could have given me a good home. When my mother died he wanted me to marry him and settle form, but ma had some life insurance, and I thought I'd take that and see New Tork."

"How much?"

"Five hundred dollars. Jim said that I ought to put it away so I'd be independent, and I had almost agreed with him when a show came to Glendale and I went to see it. The company held a owned a big farm and could have given

I went to see it. The company held a reception afterward, and one of the actresses told me that I could make good on the stage. I believed her, and in spite of all that Jim could do I decided "You didn't need a job with all tha noney in your purse." Dors smiled wryly.

"I didn't have it long," she explained.
"I hired a room in a boarding house up on Sixth avenue and then went around the stores to do some shopping. I got back to the boarding money was gone."

"Where'd it go to?"
"Pickpockets, I guess."
"Humph!"

"After that I went around to the theaters until I got taken on in this chorus.
I've been here for six weeks now, and I'm sick and tired of the whole thing." "I don't wonder. If you'd only come out with me once in a while and pick up a stage Johnny, you wouldn't find up a stage Johnny, you wouldn't find things so alow."

Dora shook her head stubbornly,
"That kind of stuff doesn't appeal to me," she answered. "I'm not used to it.
I want the West, Mary; it's the only thing that counts."

For a moment the other girl eyed her

"He wouldn't do it. He's stubborn, and he told me that if I once came here he was through."

"Oh, I see!" Mary Myers, wise in the was really fond of her strange little roommate, and she had noted with concern the paling cheeks and the lusterless eyes. She had guessed of the love afair at home and its tragic ending. Such

"Well, you go to bed, honey," she said othingly. "And maybe things will ome out all right." After Dora's deep breathing had sig-nified forgetfulness of the hall bedroom and everything connected with it, the other girl took a rather scratchy pen from the center table and addressed a letter to Mr. Jim Black, Glendale, Colo. A week passed, and the strange light in Dora's eyes grew brighter. Mary de-veloped the habit of going home directly after the evening's performance. She encouraged Dora to talk of Glendale, and of Jim, and she listened indulgently to the long stories of mountains and bills where the air was clean and the ets worth while.

IN a certain provincial town where everything is up to date and the people are always planning some new scheme, a shocking thing happened One of the popular society women nnounced a "White Elephant Party." The party, however, would have been a great success but for the unlooked-for development which broke it up.
